PREFACE TO 1916 EDITION.

IN presenting a further edition the editor desires to express his gratification in the measure of support he has received from his subscribers in the earlier issues, and trusts that as the work becomes better known, in reference, he may expect an increased patronage from the public at large.

At least one object of the book is perhaps best expressed by the following extract from a letter to the editor from Dr. Alexander Fraser, the Ontario Archivist: "The object of your book is not to furnish a medium for the gratification of those who may appear on its pages so much as to supply the public and posterity with a true record of Canadians who have merited distinction at the hands of their Sovereign or of the public, because of public service."

The editor's chief incentive in undertaking this work was to pay a tribute to the memory of his father, whose authority as a constitutional writer and adviser was well established throughout the British Empire. But the knowledge of that fact was confined mainly to parliamentarians. In connection therewith this interesting incident has just been received from Mr. J. E. B. McCready of Prince Edward Island: "When I was serving as a clerk to the Committee on the Administration of Justice in the District of Ottawa, the Committee being composed of the great lawyers, with John Hilyard Cameron as chairman, and when I got for them from the library the books bearing upon impeachments, Sir John Macdonald took in his hand one of your father's books, and turning to the Hon. Edward Blake said, 'Blake, we think we know a little law, but we would be utterly at a loss how to proceed in the present case but for this book written by a layman.'"

The purport of this book is to publish biographies both of deceased and living persons which opens the way to receive the records of eminent men who have passed away; such, combined with the many historical facts developed in the lineages, should prove of increasing interest to present and future generations.

And in addition the editor wishes to identify and preserve the armorial bearings of such families as possess them, having qualified himself by years of study and practice.

The editor has received much kind assistance from his brother, Lieutenant-Colonel A. H. Todd and Colonel de la C. T. Irwin, C.M.G., of Ottawa; Major E. M. Chadwick, K.C., of Toronto; and Mr. W. D. Schuyler-Lighthall, K.C., of Montreal.

HERBERT GEORGE TODD

PUBLISHER'S NOTE.

The preservation of family lineages including the historical incidents connected therewith amounts to a real duty even to the present generation, but doubly so to the coming one.

Family events which are known to one generation may easily be entirely lost to the next through carelessness or lack of foresight in not preserving them in written form.

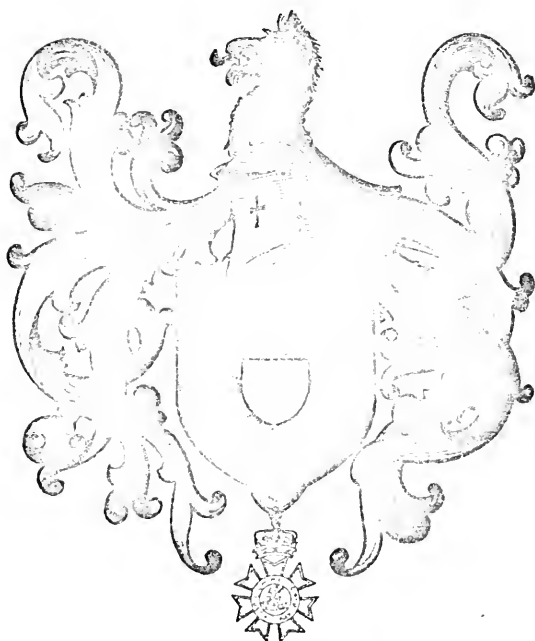

The publishing of a biography, however brief, is the most practical method of honouring the memory of parents.

Additions to this publication are continually in preparation, and will be printed and sent to contributing subscribers as soon as a sufficiency of material accumulates for a new section.

Librarians are especially requested to draw the attention of those known to be interested in genealogy to the facilities offered, through this publication, for the preservation of valuable historical matters.

Cockshutt of Brantford.

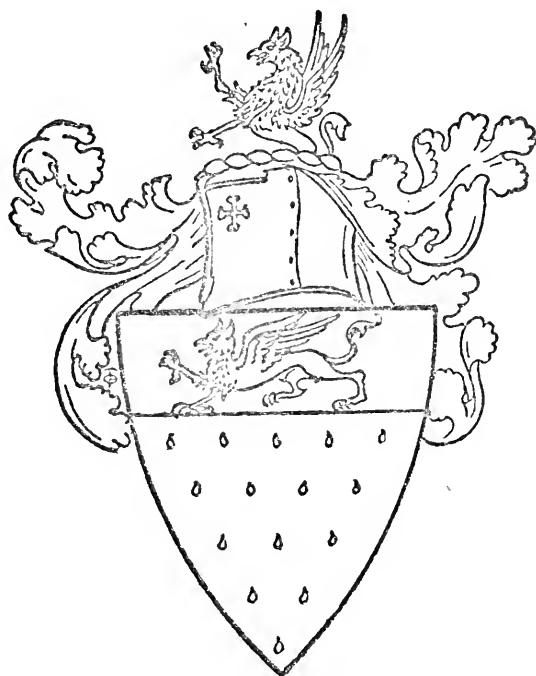

WILLIAM FOSTER COCKSHUTT (*), M. P., born Brantford Ont., 17 Oct., 1855. Member for Brantford 1904-8, and 1911; merchant; manufacturer; Ex-president, Cockshutt Plow Co., Member Electric Power Commission of Ontario; six times delegate to the Chamber of Commerce of the Empire; fifteen years member Council of Toronto Board of Trade, on directorate of several companies. Chairman, Laycock Ophanage; Member Executive Synod of Huron, and of General Synod.

He married, April 8, 1891, Minnie Turner, daughter of the Rev. Robert Ashton (and Alice Turner of London, England). Principal of the Mohawk Institute of Brantford. Issue,

- sons—1. William Ashton; born July 28, 1892; was Lieutenant in the 103d Calgary Rifles when the war broke out. He enlisted early in August, 1914, and went to the front with the first contingent; was wounded near Ypres on June 7, 1915, was invalided to Canada, and after six months convalescence he joined up with the 125th Battalion and went back a second time as Major. His health finally was affected, and he was discharged from the service in 1918.
2. George Turner; born February 17, 1894; was Lieutenant in the 38th Dufferin Rifles of Brantford at the time the war broke out. He enlisted in November, 1914, and after a winter's training in camp at Toronto went overseas with the 19th Battalion. He served for nine months on the firing line with his regiment, and was invalided home in the latter part of 1916. After recovery from severe ear trouble, he joined the Machine Gun Corps, with which he served almost a year. He was then transferred to the First Canadian Tank Battalion and went overseas a second time, as Captain, in June, 1918, and had about three weeks of experience at the firing line with the British tanks.
3. Eric Morton; born January 23, 1896; was in his first year at McGill; enlisted early in 1916 with the Brantford Battery. He was accepted for a course at the Royal Artillery School, Kingston, where he qualified with high honors as Lieutenant. After a brief training at Petawawa Camp he was sent overseas to a further course at Woolwich, where he again took very high marks. He reached the firing line in October, 1916, and served there with great credit with the 2d and 4th Batteries and the 1st D.A.C. until the close of the war; and was in practically all the heavy battles during the last two and a half years, and finally accompanied the Canadian forces to Germany. He returned to Canada in May, 1919, and was discharged from service on arrival.

Crest: An arm in armour embowed proper.

Note 1.—The name Poyntz, or Poynts, was highly esteemed by earlier members of the family. Tradition ascribes it to a relationship with the family of Sir Stephen Poyntz, of Migden, Berks., whose daughter Georgiana, on her marriage in 1755, to the 1st Earl of Spencer, offered to buy her cousin Patrick a commission in the army, which he was obliged to decline through the lack of sufficient private means to support it; but in gratitude he named his son, Poyntz. Be that as it may, William Poynts Patrick, the first recorded here, was born several decades prior to 1755.

Note 2.—Jermyn Patrick's youngest daughter, the late Mrs. William Wilson of Kingston, in a memoir preserved by her daughter, Mrs. Julian Miles of Toronto, thus describes their experience: "My mother had two children when she left England, both girls; one died on the passage out. Smallpox broke out. My father with several others had chartered a vessel to bring out emigrants to farm in the United States. My father brought out six servants, and bought a farm a few miles out of Philadelphia, U. S., where he lived six years. One son and one daughter were born there. He spent all his money farming and could make nothing out of it; and when he tried to sell, he could not get a dollar for it. So disgusted he decided to go to Canada. He started for a place called Kingston, situated at the foot of Lake Ontario. They crossed the lake in a small batteau. Their boat leaked so much that they were obliged to land on an island, and remained there until they caulked the boat, which they did by tearing up their sheets. They had hired a pilot to take them to Kingston, but it being thirty years since he had been there, he had forgotten the way and they were lost. They saw some Indians in a canoe, paddling from them as fast as possible. The pilot said, 'Hold up a black bottle and they will come to you,' which they did. My father made them understand he wanted to go to Cataragui, what Kingston was then called; and for a bottle of liquor, or 'fire-water,' as the Indians called it, they took them safely into the harbour. My father having lost all his money, tried his hand at cleaning watches, but he did not succeed at that, so he turned to lumbering. The second raft was wrecked on the way to Montreal, and my father took cold, which settled on his lungs, and he died in 1810, only forty-two years old. He left my dear mother, with his father and mother, and four children, three daughters and one son. I, Sarah Ann Patrick, being born after they came to Kingston, was only three years old when my father died. My brother died when he was fourteen. She suffered such privations and hardships after my father's death and the war of 1812 breaking out, all communication between herself and her family ceased."

Gooderham of Toronto.

WILLIAM GOODERHAM, second son of James Gooderham of Scole, Co. Norfolk, England, was born 29th August, 1790, and died 20th August, 1881. In early life he was for some time in the army and served in the West Indies. He came to Canada in 1832. Married Harriet-Tovell Herring (born November, 1802; died 5th March, 1885), and had issue, with others:

George Gooderham; born 14th March, 1830; died 1st May, 1905. Distiller and banker. Captain in the Reserve Militia. Married Harriet (died 7th November, 1907) daughter of Joseph Kay Dean, and had issue:

sons—1. William George; born 5th January, 1853; married 21st January, 1875, Ella (died 24th June, 1916), daughter of William Hargraft of Coburg, Co. Northumberland, and has issue:

Viscount Monck

THE appointment of Lord Monck in 1861 to the office of Captain General and Governor in Chief of Canada was not favorably received by the Canadian press at the time, on the ground that he "was an inexperienced and unknown man, utterly unpracticed in any kind of statesmanlike work" to guide the Ship of State at the critical period of approaching Confederation. He was not long in office, however, when stirring events proved that he possessed all the ability necessary to meet the occasion. First came "The Trent affair," 1862, that raised bad blood in the country, and required wise and tactful administration. Then in 1864 a Ministerial crisis was brought about through parties being too evenly balanced in the House and the Government was defeated by two on a measure of vital importance to the country. On petition of the Ministry for dissolution, His Excellency, while expressing his willingness to abide by the advice of his ministers, set forth, in an able memorandum, the difficulties of the situation and advised a course that would avoid appealing to the electorate, where there seemed, through the excited condition of the country, but little chance of a satisfactory result. The wisdom of this advice the Ministry acknowledged and followed. Under his regime the plan of Confederation was worked out and accomplished in 1867, he becoming first Governor General; he relinquished office in 1868. (A. Hamlyn Todd.)

St. John of Orillia

ST. ANDREW ST. JOHN (†) (deceased), born 28 June, 1794, Captain in H. B. M.'s. 4th Foot and 9th Foot, married in old Kirk Bradden, Douglas, Isle-of-Man, Margaret, eldest daughter of Philip Moore, (q. v.) of "Balla Moore," near Peel. Came to Canada and settled on a grant of land at Orillia, U. C. Died 1838. Issue:

1. Jane Margaret married (firstly) James Scott of Orillia, who died in 1847; (secondly) 1860, Toronto, Lucius Richard O'Brien (q. v.,) of Shanty Bay, Ont.
2. Sarah Ann married 1845 Alpheus Todd of Montreal. (See Todd of Ottawa.)
3. Arabella Diana Hamlyn, married 1849 George Hallen of Orillia. (She died 1910.)

Lineage

St. Andrew St. John (above) was eldest son of Ambrose St. John (1760-1823) and Arabella (daughter of Sir. James Hamlyn, Bart., whose wife Arabella was niece and heir of Sir Nicholas Williams, Kt. of Edwinstord, Carmarthen, Lord Lieutenant of the county, who died Sept. 1745). He was eldest son of

Very Rev. St. Andrew St. John, D. D., Dean of Worcester, 1732-95 (and Sarah, daughter of Thomas Chase of Bromley Kent), who was second son of John, 10th Baron St. John (and Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Ambrose Crowley of Greenwich, Sheriff of London, 1706-7, who obtained a grant of arms §. His father Ambrose Crowley, a Quaker of Stourbridge at the Visitations of 1682-3, "disclaimed all right to arms and gentility"). He died 1757. He was fourth son of

Sir Andrew St. John, 2nd Bart. (and Jane, only daughter of Sir William Blois § of Cockfield Hall, Suffolk). He died 1701. He was eldest son of

Sir Oliver St. John, created baronet 1601 (died 1661) and Barbara, daughter and co-heir of John St. Andrew § of Gotham, Notts. (a descendant of Paganus de St. Andrew *temp*s. Henry II, Visitation of Notts, 1614). His father

Sir Roland St. John, K. B., M. P., for Bedfordshire, married Sybilla, daughter of John Vaughan of Hargast Hereford, and died 1645; was fourth son of

Oliver, 3rd Baron St. John (whose eldest son Oliver was 1st. Earl of Bolingbroke). He married Dorothy (daughter of Sir John Rede of Odington, Co. Gloucester). He died 1618; was second son of

ST. JOHN OF ORILLIA

Oliver, elevated to the Peerage 1558, as 1st Lord St. John of Bletshoe, who sat in judgment (temps Elizabeth) upon Thomas, Duke of Norfolk. He married Agnes (daughter of John Fisher and granddaughter and heir of Sir Michael Fisher, Knt.). He died 1582. His father

Sir John St. John married Margaret (daughter of Sir William Waldegrave, K. B., of Smallbridge, Suffolk). [Arms per pale argent and gules.] He was eldest son of

Sir John St. John, K. B., of Bletshoe (and Sybl, daughter of Morgan ap Jenkyns ap Philip), son of

Sir John St. John, K. B. (and Alice, daughter of Sir Thomas Bradshaigh § of Haig, Co. Lancaster, a descendant of Sir John Bradshaw, a Saxon living at the Conquest), eldest son of

Sir Oliver St. John of Bletshoe and Penmark, who married (temps Henry VI) Margaret (daughter of Sir John, Lord Beauchamp, and sister and heir of John, Lord Beauchamp, § of Bletshoe [title created 1363]. Note: After Sir Oliver died; Margaret married, secondly, 1440, John Beaufort, Duke of Somerset, and their only child Margaret married, 1455, Edmund Tudor, Earl of Richmond, who was, by her, father of Henry VII). Sir Oliver was a descendant of

William de St. John of Faumont, Co. Glamorgan, second son of

Robert de St. John, Lord of Basing, Co. Southampton, who was summoned by Henry III "to be at Chester on Monday next after the Feast of St. John the Baptist well accoutered with horse and arms to oppose the incursions of the Welsh." He married Agnes, daughter of William de Cantelupe §. His father

William de St. John, who assumed the name of his maternal ancestors, was son of Mabil Orvyl (and Adam de Port, a powerful feudal baron of Basing). She was daughter of

Muriel (and Reginald de Aura Valle or Orvyl), a daughter of

Roger de St. John, who married Cicely, daughter and heiress of Robert de Haya, lord of the Manor of Halmec, Suffolk, a kinsman of Henry I. Roger's father

John de St. John of Stanton, Oxfordshire, a man of great eminence in the reign of William Rufus, was one of twelve knights who accompanied the Earl of Gloucester in a war against the Welsh and received, "in reward for his great services and helps and many victories," the castle of Faumont, Glamorgan. His father

William de St. John (whose name came from the territory of St. John, near Rouen) came into England with William the Conqueror as grand master of artillery and supervisor of the wagons and carriages, whence the horses' hames or collars were born as his cognizance (Burke). He married Olivia, daughter of Ralph de Filgiers of Normandy.

Stephen, Lord of Closeburn, whose son

Sir Roger Kirkpatrick was Justiciary of Galloway, . . . in 1304. His son

Sir Roger captured in 1355 the English castles, Durisdeer and Caerlaverock. Burke says of him: "Sir Roger was one of the first who stood up for the King, Robert the Bruce, as he was returning from striking Red John Cummin in the Dumfries Church. Sir Roger went into the church, exclaiming: 'I'll mak sicker [sure]' and then gave Cummin several stabs with a dagger." Hence the crest and motto. He was murdered by Sir James Lindsay in 1357. His son

Winfred (Umfred) was one of the hostages for the payment of King David's ransom. His son

Roger married Margaret, daughter of Thomas, 1st Lord Somerville, and Janet, daughter of Sir Alexander Stewart of Derneley. Roger's 2nd son

Rutherford Lineage

Sir Nichol de Rutherford—said in Jeffrey's History of Antiquities in Roxburghshire to have been a near relative of Sir William Wallace. His son

Sir Robert Rutherford—described as a friend of Robert Bruce in Barbour's History of Robert Bruce—had a son

Sir Richard Rutherford of that ilk. His son

William Rutherford, had a son

Sir Richard Rutherford, in 1390 Ambassador to the Court of England; afterwards appointed Warden of the Marches. Issue:

1. Sir James Rutherford (below).

2. John Rutherford of Chatto, ancestor of Andrew Rutherford, who became 1st Lord Rutherford, Jan. 19, 1661, and in 1663 Earl of Teviot,

3. Nichol Rutherford, founder of the Rutherfuds of Hundalee, which became extinct (in male line) on the death of Sir Nicholas Rutherford, whose daughter, Mary, married Sir James Ker of Crailing Hall and became ancestress of the Marquess of Lothian.

Sir James Rutherford (above) had a son

James Rutherford of that Ilk, 1st Laird of Edgerston; received charter from James IV of Scotland of the lands of Edgerston (Jan. 15, 1492) and married Margaret, daughter of Lord Erskine. Their son

Phillip Rutherford of that Ilk, Laird of Edgerston, married Elizabeth, daughter of Sir Walter Ker of Cessford, ancestor of the Dukes of Roxburghe. He had one son (as under) and two daughters, of whom 1. Helen, married Sir John Foreman, and on his death Andrew Rutherford of Hunthill, and 2. Catharine, who married Sir James Stewart of Traquair. Their grandson, Sir James Stewart, laid claim to Edgerston and other estates, and precipitated violent disputes, which ended in his obtaining some of the property, but not Edgerston. Their son

Richard Rutherford of that Ilk, Laird of Edgerston.

Thomas Rutherford of that Ilk (uncle of above and brother of Phillip Rutherford), recognized as heir-male of Edgerston under the King's Seal, 13th January, 1559, had a son

Robert Rutherford of that Ilk, Laird of Edgerston, who had a son

Thomas Rutherford of that Ilk, commonly known as "the Black Laird of Edgerston," and distinguished for exploits against the English. His son

Lineage

This family descends from the du Lac of the province of Orleans and Beauce, France, of the XII century, through Claude Lancelot du Lac de Montizambert, whose domain, with the Chateau de Montizambert, was at Tigy in Orleans. He married Susanne de Beauvilliers. Descendants of these came to Canada in 1635, one of whom Pierre Boucher, the first governor of Three Rivers, successfully defended that fort against the Iroquois in 1653, for which he was ennobled in 1661 by Louis XIV. Another descendant, Pierre Louis de Niverville de Montizambert, had, by his wife Therese Heitel de Rouville, a son

Louis de Niverville de Montizambert (1775-1834), born and died at Quebec, in the Imperial Civil Service. He married Sarah, daughter of Nathaniel and Sarah (Minot) Taylor. (Nathaniel Taylor had been Deputy Naval Officer at the port of Boston, Mass., but, on its evacuation by the king's troops, both became loyalist refugees to Canada. Lineage

Alwyn, 1st Earl of Lennox, son of Arkil or Ulkil, who is said to be the son of Maldred, son of Maldredor Malcolm, King of the Cumbrians, son of Crinan the Thane (circa 975-1045), who married Princess Beatrix, daughter of Malcolm II, King of Scotland. Alwyn's son

Alwyn, 2nd Earl of Lennox (circa 1130-1216), married Lady Eva (daughter of Gilchrist, 2nd Earl of Menteith). His son

Corc (circa 1195-1270), witnessed charter of his brother, Earl of Maldouen. His son Murdoch (circa 1235-1310), called Murdoch MacCorc, had a charter to the lands of Croy, afterwards called Croy-Leckie. His son

Duncan (circa 1270-1333) had lands of Rahane and Altermony in the Lennox; created Hereditary Sergeant of Dumbartonshire for services to Robert Bruce, King of Scotland. His son

Malcolm de Leky had a charter from King David II to lands of Leky (afterwards Leckie) formerly owned by King Robert Bruce; he was Hereditary Sergeant of Dumbartonshire. His son

Murdoch de Leky (circa 1330-1405), of Leckie, Rahane, Altermony, etc. His son Murdoch de Leky (circa 1365-1445) had a confirmatory charter from King Robert III, of Rahane and Altermony, and a confirmatory charter from Robert, Duke of Albany, of Easter Lecky. He married Margaret Murray of the Kypmad family. His son

Sir Walter Lecky, or Leckie, fought for Charles VII and Joan of Arc, in France, against the English; he defeated the Duke of Bedford at Lagny in 1432. His son

Malcolm Leckie of that ilk (circa 1423-85), married (firstly) a daughter of Robert, Lord Fleming; the name of his second wife was probably Cuningham. By his first wife his son

James Leckie of that ilk (circa 1450-1514), had a son

Richard Leckie of that ilk (1475-1542), of Leckie, Rahane, Altermony, Letterbeg, etc.; was obligated to Margaret, Queen of Scots, for safe keeping of Doune Castle. His son

John Leckie of that ilk (circa 1500-47), of Leckie, Rahane, Altermony, Letterbeg, Drumfada, Stukleddy, etc., was one of a special bodyguard to Queen Mary, for whom he was fighting when killed at Pinkiecleugh, 10th September (He married daughter of Sir Ninian Seton of Touch and Tullibody.) His son

Walter Leckie of that ilk (1535-1605), sold Rahane and Altermony in 1579 to Donald Campbell of Drongie; he carried on a deadly feud with the Grahams under the Earl of Menteith—all the Leckies united to fight the Graham clan. He married (firstly) Agnes, daughter of William Cuningham of Glengarnok, and great-great-granddaughter of Princess Mary, daughter of Robert III. He married (secondly), 1597 (with consent of his son Alexander), Margaret, daughter of Alexander Livingston of Pantosken. His son by the first marriage

Alexander Leckie, of that ilk (circa 1560-1601), was murdered by Alexander Lindsay of Dunrod. He married Euphemia, daughter of George Maxwell of Newark. His son

Alexander Leckie, of that ilk, carried on the feud against the Maxwells and Lindsays, and finally dispossessed Alexander Lindsay, of Dunrod, of his estate. He married Grizel, daughter of Sir John Murray of Polmais. His son

John Leckie, last of that ilk (circa 1626-70), married Jean, daughter of Sir George Buchanan (and sister of John, the last Buchanan of that ilk). He lost the estate of Leckie, which was transferred to David Moir. His son

John Leckie was baptised in 1666. His son

Robert Leckie married Elspel Micklehouse. His son

John Leckie was baptised in 1716, and married Isobel Henderson. He died in Leckie before 1767. His son

Robert Leckie, born in Leckie, 1748; removed to Glasgow and there married Margaret Knox in 1784. His son

Robert Leckie, born 1797; married (firstly) Miss Deans; (secondly) Margaret, daughter of Captain John Gilmour; (thirdly) Jane Wright; he was a Justice of the Peace and a Baillie in Pollockshas. His son, by the second marriage, was Major Robert Gilmour Leckie (as above).

Arms (as matriculated, 1912, to Major Robert Gilmour Leckie by Sir James Balfour Paul, Lyon King of Arms): Argent, on a chevron between three roses gules, barbed and seeded vert, a spur or. Crest: An anchor or cabled gules.

Motto (over the crest): "Gubernat navem deus."

Arms (as borne by Captain John Edwards Leckie, D. S. O.): Same as above, differenced by a crescent; pendant from the shield the badge of the Distinguished Service Order.

Note: This pedigree has been established by records and charters in the British Museum and elsewhere; also from a pamphlet on the Lairds of Leckie by W. E. Cook of Stirling; and from parish records of Gargunnoch, Stirlingshire. Regarding the ancestry of Alwyn, 1st Earl of Lennox, authorities differ; Crawford and Nesbit stating him to be descended through Arkil, from Arkil, son of Egfrith, the great Northumbrian baron, who defied William the Conqueror. Another tradition based on a Gaelic poem by Murdoch Albanach (1180-1220) makes him 5th in descent from Lughaidh, King of Munster, Ireland.

Lineage

William Jarvis (born about 1666), of Huntington, Long Island, died 1740. He was supposed to be a son of Stephen Jarvis, who bought lands from the Indians in Long Island. His will states him to be of "the County of Suffolke on the Island of Nassau in the Province of New York"—now Long Island. He married Esther—. His eldest son died young. His second son

Captain Samuel Jarvis (1698-1779), an officer in the Colonial Militia; he married Naomi Brush of Coldspring, L. I. His eldest son was

Samuel Jarvis (1720-83). He and his sons were royalists during the Revolutionary War; was Town Clerk of Stamford, Conn., 1760-75. He married Martha Seymour. His son was

William (Mr. Secretary) Jarvis (1756-1817), the founder of the family in Upper Canada. He married, 1785, Hanna Owen, daughter of the Rev. Samuel Peters, a loyalist; served as cornet in the first (American) Regiment or Queens Rangers Dragoons under Lieut. Col. John Graves Simcoe; he was wounded at Brandywine. On the withdrawal of the British troops from the American Colonies, he went to England, and took a commission in the Army; in 1792 was appointed Secretary and Registrar of Upper Canada—hence his appellation. He and his family sailed in the troopship "Henicker" to Sorel, Quebec, and were nearly wrecked. He settled at the new capital, Newark (Niagara-on-the-Lake). He was Grand Master Mason; all the early Masonic warrants in Ontario bear his signature and are known as the "Jarvis Warrants." He died in York. His son

Col. Samuel Peters Jarvis, who was second of the name, the first having died in youth, (1792-1857), born Newark, Upper Canada. He was noted, even when quite young, having been adopted as a Missisaga Indian; he was a famous shot. He married Mary Boyles, daughter of Hon. William Dummer Powell (q.v.). He practised law; was Clerk of the Crown in Chancery; and Chief Superintendent of Indian affairs. He served in the war of 1812, and was present at the taking of Detroit (medal and clasp) and at the battles of Queenston Heights, Lundy's Lane, and Stony Creek. After Stony Creek he was in command of the escort of the captured American General Winfield Scott, he saved the latter from being killed by the Indians. During the Rebellion of 1837, he raised and commanded another regiment of Queens Rangers, and was present at the affair of Montgomery's Tavern, and at the cutting out of the "Caroline" on the Niagara River. He was Judge Advocate in the trial of the Fenian prisoner General Sutherland. As a youth he shot a son of Surveyor General Ridout in a duel, near the N. W. corner of Yonge and College Sts., Toronto, but was exonerated on the field. He attacked William L. Mackenzie's printing office and threw the type into Toronto Bay, because of an article in the latter's paper on the "Family Compact," in which the female members of his family were introduced. Jarvis Street was named after him. He had five sons and four daughters. His eldest son

Maj. General Samuel Peters Jarvis (1820-1905) was educated for the law, but, owing to his being instrumental in saving the life of Lord Morpeth, while bathing in the Georgian Bay, he obtained through the latter, and by the help of Lord Wellington, a commission as Ensign in the Royal Canadian Rifle Regiment, but later exchanged to the 82d at Halifax, and served with it through the Indian Mutiny. He was at the Relief of Lucknow and many other engagements (medal, clasp, and brevet majority); was sometime Adjutant of the Staff college at Sandhurst. Retired from his regiment and accepted appointment as Assistant Adjutant General of the Militia in Canada with rank of Lieutenant Colonel. In the first Riel Rebellion he took command of the Ontario Battalion, and was in supreme command until the arrival of Lord Wolseley; was Commandant of the garrison at Fort Garry until the withdrawal of troops from Manitoba, when he was created a C. M. G. and gazetted, 1875, Colonel in the Imperial Army; in 1878 was sent on a special service to South Africa and was in command of the Colonial troops in the Kaffir War (medal and clasp); later retired with rank of Major General. He married Rennee Wilson. He died at Bath without issue. His brother

William Dummer Powell (1821-60), a prominent barrister of Guelph, Ont., married Diana (daughter of the Hon. Jacob Æmelius Irving, Captain of the 13th Hussars). A good shot, and a noted swimmer; he swam across the Niagara River and back, just below the American Fall. Issue:

Baron Lisgar, 2nd Governor General of Canada.

SIR JOHN YOUNG (1807-76), 2nd baronet of Bailieborough Castle, Co. Cavan, was educated for the bar, to which he was called at the age of twenty-seven. In 1831 he entered political life, becoming member for Co. Cavan as a moderate Tory. In 1841 he was appointed a lord of the Treasury in Sir Robert Peel's ministry; and three years later became one of the Secretaries of the Treasury. In 1846 he was Chief Secretary for Ireland under Lord Aberdeen, and entered the Privy Council in 1852. In 1855 he was appointed Lord High Commissioner of the Ionian Islands (G. C. M. G.)—then under a British protectorate—; and, in 1861, accepted the Governor Generalship of New South Wales, which office he held until 1867. In both the latter offices he was unfortunate, in that he left each under the cloud of official displeasure, caused rather by adverse and trying circumstances than by poor judgment. That the government appreciated these facts and had confidence in his abilities is attested by his being gazetted a G. C. B., and offered the governor-generalship of Canada—at a time, too, as events proved, when sound judgment was required.

It was, in a measure, due to those same misfortunes that Young determined to accept the Canadian office; for it had been tendered to Lord Mayo and others, who refused it, on the ground that "the Canadian government had impaired the dignity of the office by reducing the governor's salary." Sir John was appointed to the position, which included the governorship of Prince Edward Island—not then confederated—in 1869. The first year of his administration was darkened by the first Riel Rebellion. The following year he was created Baron Lisgar of Lisgar and Bailieborough. He resigned in 1872, and died four years later, when the barony became extinct.

That his short official life in Canada was successful is best evidenced, perhaps, by the following quotation from Pope's "Life of Sir John Macdonald:" "In Sir John Macdonald's opinion, Lord Lisgar was an ideal governor, the ablest of all those under whom he served; Sir John Young was a man of great sagacity, of large experience, and sound judgment. His single desire was to promote the best interests of the Dominion of Canada, and to his wise and prudent counsels Sir John Macdonald was greatly indebted" (Editor).

Residence: 104 Union Ave., Montreal.

Lineage.

"According to Longmuir's edition of Jamieson's Scottish dictionary, the word 'heriot' is derived from the Anglo-Saxon, and signified the tribute given to the lord of the manor for his better preparation for war; but came at length to denote the best beast, of whatever kind, which a tenant died possessed of, due to his superior after death. Professor Innes, in his work entitled, 'Concerning Some Scottish Surnames,' classes the surname 'Heriot' among those derived from places or lands. There is a parish and a river in it, both of the name of 'Heriot,' about twenty miles southeast of Edinburgh; also a small stream of the name in the parish of Cockburnspath, Berwickshire. The first notice believed to have been yet found of the name used as a surname is that of 'Willelmo de Heryt,' who was witness to a charter granted by King William the Lion, prior to 1214."

The Scottish historian, George Buchanan (1506-82), whose mother was Agnes Heriot, a daughter of the house of Trabroun, says that William Heriot and another aided in the escape of Robert, High Steward of Scotland, from Rothesay, whither he had fled from the English, after the battle of Halidon Hill (1333). The escape of the Steward, afterward Robert II., proved to be one of the most important events in Scottish history.

By a charter from Archibald, Earl of Douglas, in 1423, confirmed by James I. of Scotland, the lands of Trabroun, some 400 acres in East Lothian, were granted, for military service, to John Heriot, who is described as "squire and son to his confederate, James Heriot of Niddry Marischal." The estates were held in the family until the death of the last direct male heir in 1620.

At the marriage of Elizabeth, daughter of James Heriot, of Trabroun, to Sir Thomas Hamilton, of Priestfield (their son became 1st Earl of Haddington), was a witness,

George Heriot, a cadet of Trebroun; he was a tenant farmer in Longniddrie in 1549; he died (circ.) 1570. His son was

George Heriot (died 1625), tenant of Longniddrie. His son was Robert Heriot (died after 1667), tenant of Longniddrie. His second son was James (died 1762); tenant of Castlemains; married Janet Horsburgh, their two sons, Robert and William, settled in South Carolina in 1759 and 1763 respectively, leaving descendants. Robert served on Washington's staff during the Revolutionary War.

George Heriot (1688-1753), Sheriff Clerk for the County of East Lothian; married Mary Tannoch. Issue: 1. John (below). 2. Jean, born 1736. 3. Mary (1738-70). 4. Janet, born 1740. 5. George, born 1741; settled in South Carolina 1761, leaving issue. 6. Margaret (1743-70). 7. Janet, born 1748. 8. William, born 1751.

John Heriot, born Haddington, Scotland, 1734; Sheriff Clerk for County of East Lothian; married his cousin, Marjory (see note), daughter of John Heriot, tenant of Ladykirk and Shiels, Berwickshire, Scotland. Issue:

1. John (below).
2. George (1766-1844); Deputy Postmaster General of Canada, 1799-1816; author of "Heriot's Travels Through the Canadas," "History of Canada," "Travels in Spain and South of France;" one of the earliest Canadian artists in both oil and water colour. He died without issue.
3. Roger (1769-1849) married Catherine Booth; settled in Charleston, S. C.; left descendants.
4. Sophia married Melmouthe Guy, of Kenton Hall, Devon. Their only son was Lt.-Gen. Sir Philip Melmouthe Nelson Guy, K. C. B., an officer of long and distinguished service.

John Heriot (1760-1833), born Haddington; married Mary Alison Sheriff, an Edinburgh family (her brother, Charles, though deaf and dumb, was an eminent portrait painter, principally of miniatures); Lieutenant of Marines, 1778; wounded in Admiral Rodney's action with the French fleet in the West Indies, 1780; placed on half pay, 1783. He founded the "London Sun," 1791; and "The True Briton" in 1792, to support the policy of William Pitt, the younger; was appointed Deputy Paymaster General to the forces in the Windward Islands, 1810; and Comptroller of Chelsea Hospital, 1816, where he died; author of several works. Issue: 1. Amelia, died at Brighton, England, 1858. 2. Jane. 3. John Charles (below).

John Charles Heriot (circ. 1795-1825), born London, Eng.; Lieutenant in the Hon. East India Company's Service; he married in India, where he and his wife died about the same time, leaving two children, who were sent to England; the elder, Sophia (1818-25), sailed with her nurse; they perished in the wreck of the vessel—all records of the marriage being lost; the younger child

John Charles Heriot, Jr. (1819-91), born in the Presidency of Madras, India; he owed his life to the fact that he was kidnapped by natives for a ransom, on the eve of the sailing of the ill-fated vessel; he was found shortly after and sent home by another ship. Gentleman; came to Canada 1848; resided at Georgeville, Quebec, and at the "Hermitage," Lake Memphremagog. He married Maria Ann, daughter of Moise Cass (a relative of the American General, Lewis Cass, once candidate for the Presidency of the United States), a U. E. L. of Hawkesbury, Ont. Issue:

1. John Charles Alison (as above).
2. Frederick George, born Nov. 29, 1862; formerly of the Bank of Montreal, Ottawa, retired.

MAJ. GEN. THE HON. FREDERICK GEORGE HERIOT, C. B.

Note: Marjory Heriot's youngest brother, Roger Heriot, was Surgeon of the 13th Foot and afterward Surgeon to the forces in the Island of Jersey. He married Anne, daughter of Major Walter Nugent, of the 75th Reg. His son, Frederick George Heriot (1786-1843), was born in Jersey; appointed Ensign 49th Foot, 1801; Captain, 1806; Lt.-Col., 1813; Colonel, 1830; Maj.-General, 1841. He was transferred to the newly-organized Canadian Voltigeurs, a detachment of which he commanded at the attack on Sackett's Harbor, at Fort George, in 1813, and at the battle of Chrysler's Farm; at the battle of Plattsburg he commanded a brigade composed of the Voltigeurs and a corps of light infantry; for his services in that war he was made C. B. He was a member of the Provincial Parliament of Quebec; also of the Executive Council; Provincial Aide-de-Camp to the Governors-General. He founded Drummondville, Que., where he died without issue.

A niece of Mrs. John Heriot, née Mary Alison Sheriff, married Colonel Mackonochie of the East India Co.'s service. His third son was the Rev. Alexander Heriot Mackonochie, who for many years was Rector of St. Alban's, Holborn, London.

George Heriot, the banker-jeweller of James I.'s reign, the founder of Heriot's Hospital, Edinburgh, and the prototype of the character of that name in Sir Walter Scott's "Fortunes of Nigel," was also a descendant of the Heriots of Trabroun.

Lineage.

"Magna Britannica" states that the name Durnford, which was anciently spelled "de Derneford," derives its name from a village in Normandy; that the family received for its services at the battle of Hastings, grants of land in Devon and Cornwall, including Rame Head, acquired by marriage with the daughter of Rame of Rame. The branch described below has for centuries borne the ram's head for arms. According to tradition the family came over with William the Conqueror. There are lands in North Cadbury, Somersetshire, still called "Durnford's Grounds." The parish registers of North Cadbury shew that toward the end of the 16th century one of the church wardens was William Durnford. It is likely that he was a descendant of that William Durnford who died about the middle of the 15th century, possessed of various manors in Somersetshire. His son

John Durnford (born 1590), was a church warden of North Cadbury. His son was John Durnford (born 1629), of North Cadbury. The family were Royalists, and retired to Bristol during the Civil War. His son

Andrew Durnford (died 1690), at Andover, Hants, where, in 1683, he married (secondly) Mary Chator. Their son

Thomas Durnford (born 1684), at Andover, married Mary (daughter of Elias Lane, of Christchurch, who died aged 110). Their son

Elias Durnford (1720-74), born Ringwood, Hants; Treasurer of the Ordnance, Tower of London; married Martha Gannaway. His monument is on pavement of north aisle, St. Leonard's Church, Streatham. His son Elias Durnford (1739-94), born Ringwood, died Tobago, B. W. I.; Lt.-Col. Royal Artillery; Lt.-Gov. West Florida; Surveyor General; married Rebecca Walker of Suffolk (see note). Their son.

Elias Walker Durnford (1774-1850), born Lowestoft, Suffolk; Lt.-Gen. and Colonel commandant Royal Engineers. Built the fortifications of Quebec; married Jane Sophia Mann, a descendant of Thomas Chiflinch, a page to Charles II. His son

Philip Durnford (1804-81), born at Dungannon Fort. Captain, H. M. S. 68th Regiment; later Collector, Inland Revenue, Montreal. Married Augusta, daughter of Stephen Sewell, K. C.; Solicitor General for Lower Canada, a U. E. Loyalist from Boston, Mass. Issue:

Note: Elias Durnford (1739-94) had a younger brother, Andrew Durnford. Colonel of the Royal Engineers; Lt.-Gov. of Bermuda, who was the ancestor of the late Col. Arthur George Durnford, R. E., whose son now represents the fifth successive generation of the family in the Royal Engineers. Col. Anthony W. Durnford, who perished with his command at Isandula (1879), was an elder brother of Col. Arthur George Durnford.

2. Roderick Percy, born March 7, 1880, of Ottawa, married Reba Fraser. Issue: Roderick Fraser.
3. Edith, married Francis Leonard Vaux [see Vaux, Brockville]. Issue: Edith Patricia Wellesley.

Lineage.

The family of Sparks has long been settled in the Counties of Essex and Devon, England. The founder of the Irish branch was Nicholas Sparks, an officer in the army under the Duke of Marlborough (1650-1722). In return for his services he received, about 1720, a grant of land in the parish Darragh, Co. Wexford, in perpetuity, for a nominal rental. His descendant

Samuel Sparks (whose younger brother, Nicholas, was grandfather of Nicholas Sparks of Bytown, U. C.), had a son Abraham Sparks (1776-1856), born and died in Darragh; at the age of twenty-two he was a Captain in the Yeomanry under Colonel Boulton in the Irish insurrection of 1798. He married the widow of William West, an English officer domiciled near the Sparks estate, who was killed in the same insurrection. His four sons came to Canada in 1825, settling on the east bank of the Rideau River—now part of the City of Ottawa. They were: 1. George (below). 2. Abraham (his two sons lived in Nepean). 3. Robert. 4. Frederick.

George Sparks (1801-67), born Oct. 31, parish of Darragh, died Nov. 6, Co. Russell; became wealthy as a contractor. He married, 1822, Sarah (Colley) Walsh of Darragh (1805-87). Issue:

Lineage.

The family of Baker was settled at Cranbrooke in Kent as early as the reign of Edward III. Thomas Baker, Esq., a descendant, obtained, in the reign of Henry VII, part of the neighbouring lands of Sissinghurst. His son, Richard Baker, temp Henry VII, had a son,

Sir John Baker, Kt. of Sissinghurst, adopted the profession of the law, attained considerable eminence, and when yet a young man was sent as Ambassador to Denmark. On his return he became Speaker of the House of Commons; later he was appointed Attorney General, and a Privy Councillor. In 1545 his activity in forwarding a loan in London, caused the King to make him Chancellor of the Exchequer. He was noted for being the only Privy

Councillor who steadfastly denied his assent to the will of Henry VIII, by which the Princess Mary and Elizabeth were excluded from inheriting the Crown. He was Privy Councillor successively to Henry VIII, Edward VI, Mary, and Elizabeth. He married Elizabeth, daughter and heir of Thomas Dinley (widow of George Barrett). Their 2nd son,

John Baker, of London, married Catherine, daughter of Sir Reginald Scott, Kt. of Scots Hall. Their son,

Sir Richard Baker, Kt. (c. 1568-1645), of Sissinghurst; Oxon; knighted 1603; author of the "Chronicle of the Kings of England" (often referred to by Sir Roger de Coverley); he married Margaret, daughter of Sir George Manwaring of Ighfield, by whom he had two sons and three daughters. Sir Richard possessed the manor of Middle Aston in Oxfordshire, and served the office of High Sheriff for that county in 1620; but, having become surety for some of the debts of his wife's family, was thereby reduced to poverty and thrown into Fleet prison, where he died. He was buried in St. Bride's Church, Fleet Street. One son,

Thomas Baker settled at Lattinmore, Tipperary, Ireland, 1642. His son, Walter Baker, born 1623, had a son, Macdonell of Windsor, Ont.

ARCHIBALD CAMERON MACDONELL, C.M.G., D.S.O., Brigadier-General: Born Windsor, Ont., Oct. 6, 1864; graduate of Kingston Military College; served with distinction in the Boer War (D.S.O.), severely wounded (see "Canadian Men and Women of the Time—1912"); succeeded to the command of Strathcona's Horse (Royal Canadians), 1912; also in command of the Royal School of Instruction, Winnipeg. With his command he left Valcartier for England in 1914; where his regiment was brigaded with the Royal Canadian Dragoons, and the 2nd King Edward's Horse. The brigade volunteered for trench service in France without horses; arriving in May, 1915. Fought at the battle of Festubert, where Strathcona's Horse lost nearly one-third of its effective force in trench warfare (three days' battle). In December, 1915, Lt.-Col. Macdonell accepted command of the 7th Canadian Infantry Brigade, with rank of Brigadier-General; the brigade consisting of the Royal Canadian Regiment, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, 49th Edmonton Regiment, with machine gun, and trench mortar batteries. Was mentioned in despatches, January, 1916 (C.M.G.). In February he was shot twice in arm and shoulder while visiting an advance gun-post. He resumed command two months later. In June his brigade was warmly commended for holding their line under heavy losses, and again for action in September.

He married, 1890, Mary Maud Flora, third daughter of the late Col. John Thomas Campbell (note). Issue, sons—1. Ian Cameron, born March 11, 1895; certified aviator from Royal Aero Club, 1913; Lieutenant, Strathcona's Horse, 1914; A. D. C. to Brig.-Gen. Seely; seconded to the Royal Flying Corps, 1915. On July 2, 1916, while flying over the enemy's lines at Flers, France, he was shot down. A major-general commenting on his death declared him to be, "brave, daring, and resourceful."

2. Alastair Cameron, born 1896 (died infant).

daughters—1. Jean Campbell (died infant).

2. Alison Cameron.

Note: Col. John Thomas Campbell served with the 72nd Highlanders, and saw active service in the Crimea as an Ensign, being wounded in the trenches before Sebastopol; served with the Royal Fusiliers, and later with the Royal Canadian Rifles. His father was Thomas Campbell, and his mother was a daughter of the Campbells of Glendarnel, Argyllshire. The families were not related.

Lineage.

John Macdonell, received a tack of Leek in 1661; he is supposed to have been Ian Mor (John the Elder), a younger son of Donald Macdonell 7th of Glengarry, who died, 1645, aged one hundred years, and his wife, Margaret, daughter of Niall Macdonald 9th of Clanranald.

Ranald Macdonell received a tack of Leek in 1690; he married a daughter of Chief Grant of Glenmoriston and had two sons, Alexander of Leek, and John. The elder, Alexander, signed an address to George I in 1714; he is said to have had four sons, viz.: Angus, Ranald, John and Donald; there is some uncertainty here. Leek was held by a John Macdonell early in the eighteenth century, but whether he was John son of Ranald, or John son of Alexander is not known. He had three sons, all of whom were in the ill-fated army of Prince Charles Edward, the "Young Pretender."

1. John of Leek, who married Jean, daughter of Alexander Chisholm of Mackerach, and niece of Roderick Chief of the Clan Chisholm, and had six sons and four daughters; he followed his sons and brothers to America. His eldest son, Angus, died unmarried. His younger son, Archibald, in the break-up of the Highland families after 1745, emigrated to America and settled in New York, being the pioneer of the extensive emigration in 1773 of Macdonells and others who settled in the Mohawk Valley under the leadership of Allan of Collachie (below), Alexander of Aberchalder, and another, probably "Spanish John" of the Scottus branch of Glengarry.
2. Allan of Collachie (below).
3. Alexander of Aberchalder.

Allan Macdonell of Collachie, after 1745, went to France; entered the French service; rose to the rank of Captain, serving for ten years; he then emigrated to America, as stated above. Served in the Revolutionary War as Captain in the Royal Highland Emigrant regiment, his commission being dated 14th June, 1775. He was made prisoner, but escaped, and reached Quebec in 1779. He was then too old for further military service. He married Helen, daughter of the Mac Nab; he died 1792, aged eighty. Issue, sons—1. Angus (U.E.L.); unmarried; lost in the wreck of the "Speedy" on Lake Ontario, 1804.

2. Alexander (U.E.L.), below.

3. James (U.E.L.); Captain, 43rd Regt.; unmarried; died in West Indies in campaign against the French.

2. Catherine; married, 1798, Captain Miles Macdonell (U.E.L.) of Scottus branch.

The Hon. Alexander Macdonell (1762-1842), born in Scotland; joined the Loyalist forces in America as a volunteer, obtaining in 1783 a commission with the same regiment in which his father had served; and later in Butler's Rangers. Came to Canada; was Sheriff in the Home District, 1792-1803; member for Glengarry in the Legislative Assembly; speaker in 1804; subsequently member of Legislative Council; Colonel of Militia, 1812; taken prisoner by Americans, and held until the end of the war. He married Ann, daughter of James Smith, and sister of the Hon. Samuel Smith (Colonel of the Queen's Rangers; M.L.C., and twice Administrator of the Government of Upper Canada). Issue, sons—1. Allan (1808-88); unmarried; Sheriff of Gore District.

2. James (1810-65); Collector of Inland Revenue. (He wrote his name McDonell); married, 1835, Margaret Leah, daughter of Col. the Hon. Samuel Smith (above); had issue.

3. Angus Duncan (c. 1814-94); (see Macdonell of Toronto).

4. Alexander (1820-93); unmarried; Barrister.

5. Samuel Smith (below).

dtrs.—1. Helen Anne; died infant.

2. Henrietta; married Captain George Edward Aylmer, 93rd Highlanders; had issue.

Samuel Smith Macdonell (1823-1907), of Windsor, Ont.; Barrister, Q.C., LL.D., D.C.L.; Master in Chancery; Clerk of the Peace, Essex Co.; Lieut.-Colonel Essex County Battalion. Married Ellen Gillis, eldest daughter of Col. Daniel Dodge Brodhead of Brookline, Mass. (See Brodhead Lineage.) Issue,

Todd of Ottawa

TODD, ALPHEUS, C.M.G.; LL.D. (†) (deceased), Librarian of Parliamentary Library, Ottawa. Born in London, England, 30 July, 1821. Came to Canada with parents when eleven years old. In 1834 at the age of thirteen he drew and published the first map of Toronto, then York. When fifteen years of age (1836) he entered the public service as Assistant to the Librarian of the Upper Canada Legislature at Toronto. Promoted to the full charge of the Parliamentary Library in 1856. Made Honorary Doctor of Laws by Queen's University 1881, and the same year C. M. G. Author of the following works: "Practice and Privileges of the Two Houses of Parliament" (1840), "Parliamentary Government in England" (1866-9), "Parliamentary Government in the Colonies" (1880). As a Constitutional authority, acknowledged throughout the British Empire, covering a long period of his life, and up to the time of his death, he was much consulted in and outside of Canada by Governors and Ministers, for his opinion on legislative difficulties, as they arose, in the different Colonies. To this fact the Parliamentary papers of Australasia amply testify.

Lineage.

It is a well-known fact that many families of Scott trace their descent from the Baliols. Sir William Baliol, a younger brother of John Baliol, King of Scotland, about the end of the thirteenth, or beginning of the fourteenth century, to avoid being drawn into the ruin which overtook his royal brother, changed his name to Le Scot, the name of his mother, who was Margaret Le Scot, Countess of Huntington. Among the numerous branches who claim descent from him are the Scotts of Great Barr in Staffordshire who have been settled in that vicinity from the reign of Edward I. The head of the house, Sir Joseph Scott, high Sheriff of Staffordshire, M.P. for Worcester, was created a baronet in 1806. And the present holder of the title is the seventh baronet.

One Richard Scott of the Great Barr family was one of the "Gentlemen Adventurers" who financed Cromwell's war in Ireland, and went there during the "settlement." His son, Angel Scott, acquired the Cahiracon estate from the Earl of Thomond and was the founder of the Scotts of Cahiracon who held that estate until 1850.

A younger member of the family was

Richard Scott, residing near Ennis, Co. Clare, about the middle of the XVIII Century. Issue, sons—1. Richard (below).

2. John, whose son, Richard, born 1780, was a prominent supporter of Daniel O'Connell. There are many descendants of John now residing in Ireland.

Etymology.

William Burritt, from Glamorganshire, Wales, is the Colonial ancestor of this family. He settled with his wife Elizabeth in Stratford in the British Colony of Connecticut; he died 1651. Issue, sons—1. Stephen (below).

2. John. And a daughter Mary, who married M. Smith.

Stephen Burritt, Ensign of the Train Band—a militia organization, 1672; Recorder of Stratford, 1673; Lieutenant and Commissary of the Army, 1675; Town Treasurer 1689; Chairman on the Committee of Wolf killing, Town Auditor, 1690. He married, 1673, Sarah, daughter of Isaac Nichols (son of Francis Nichols, son of Sergt. Francis Nichols from England, a near relative of Sir Richard Nicolls, first English Governor of New York who changed the name of New Amsterdam to New York). Issue, sons—1. William, born 1677.

2. Peleg, born 1679.

3. Josiah, born 1681.

4. Israel, born 1687.

5. Charles (below).

6. Ephraim, born 1693.

A daughter, Elizabeth, born 1675.

Charles Burritt, born 1689, had issue,

1. Daniel (below).

2. Charles.

3. Elihu (grandfather of Elihu "the learned blacksmith," Note No. 1).

The two younger sons espoused the cause of the Revolution.

Daniel Burritt is believed to have remained a royalist; where he lived after the war is not recorded, but it is believed he died in Canada. He left issue,

1. Adoniram.

2. Stephen (below).

3. Edmund.

4. Daniel.

5. Major.

Lieut.-Col. Stephen Burritt was born in New England; he entered the British Army at nineteen and served seven years. He was dispatch writer for Col. Barry St. Leger, Commandant of the Royal forces in Canada. He was wounded at Gage's Hill, was present at the taking of Fort Edward and at the surrender of Burgoyne. After the war he and his brother Daniel settled on the upper St. Lawrence with other discharged soldiers. In 1793 he penetrated the woods thirty miles and founded Burritts Rapids, where he died; he being the first white man to explore and settle on the North Bank of the Rideau River. His chopping attracted a Mohawk Indian, who ordered him off the hunting grounds of the tribe. After a desperate struggle he downed the Indian and threatened to brain him. The Indian begged for mercy and promised fellowship, which he faithfully kept. Stephen was Lieutenant Colonel of the 2nd Regiment, Grenville Militia; he saw service under General Brock at Fort Wellington in the war of 1812. From 1809-17 he represented Leeds and Grenville in the Legislature. Issue, sons—1. Henry, born 1791.

2. Edmund, born 1793 (below).

3. William Augustus, born 1803.

4. Stephen, born 1805.

6. Hamilton, born 1803.

And a daughter, Sarah, born 1801.

Lieut.-Col. Edmund Burritt (1793-1877) born, Burritts Rapids, died at Thornbury, Ont. He married (firstly) Annie Perrine, by whom he had issue, a son—Henry Osgoode (of whom presently).

2. Anna Caroline.

Arms: (from a seal belonging to Lieut.-Col. Edmund Burritt, see note No. 2)
Vert three plain shields two and one each having a bordure inverted or.

Crest: A naked arm embowed proper, the hand grasping a sprig of laurel vert.

Motto: Sub libertate quietem.

Note 1. Elihu Burritt (1810-79) famous as the "learned blacksmith," was so called because he was brought up to, and for many years worked at that trade both in New Britain, Conn., where he was born, and later in Worcester, Mass., but devoted all his spare time to mathematics and to mastering not only the dead languages and the principal modern languages, but some of the difficult Eastern tongues, such as Arabic. But he was best known for his energy in advocating "Universal Brotherhood," in furthering which he travelled through Europe and America, taking part in several peace conferences. He was the author of several works on the subject. From 1865-70 he was U. S. Consul at Birmingham, England.

Note 2. This blazon is similar to that of the Burrell family, which may account for a tradition in the Burritt family that the name had been different originally. The latter name seems to be unknown in the British Isles.
